

Chaparral 310 Signature

Loaded with extras for the cruising connoisseur.

Dennis Ashley of Chaparral Boats says the company is aiming the 310 Signature at “the guy who’s seen the other stuff, who’s been on the other boats and who’s ready to step up to something better.”

The 310 features the company’s Extended V-Plane hull, designed to give the boat a smooth surface that’s quick to plane with steady, controlled acceleration.

In the cockpit, a U-shaped bench to starboard seats five adults around an oversized dinette table. Storage space can be found under each of the seats, and one of the cushions flips up to reveal a compartment that stores a removable Igloo cooler. The table is sturdy yet lightweight, making it easy to stow. Remove it, add a filler cushion, and the area turns into a giant sun lounge.

Across from the dinette is an entertainment center that includes a sink and swivel faucet with pressurized water, a large insulated ice chest and a stainless steel grab bar. Even with the optional refrigerator here, this cockpit refreshment stand is just a tease of the galley found down below.

The helm has an unusual four-tiered layout that keeps all your controls, gauges and switches visible and easily accessible. The dash also holds a number of removable inserts, so new instruments can be installed or existing ones can be serviced.

The elegant belowdeck features cherry cabinetry and accessories. Three screened hatches and opening side ports give the cabin an airy feel.

The galley includes a microwave, electric stove, refrigerator and stainless steel sink.

Starboard, a crescent-shaped dinette seats four for dining or converts to a single berth. Forward is a double V-berth, which rests atop two storage drawers. More storage can be found in two full-size, cedar-lined hanging closets. A sizeable aft cabin sleeps two more adults. ⚓

The cherry-accented galley not only looks good, it performs well, with a full range of appliances.
